DECISION

I. INTRODUCTION

The above-entitled matter came before the undersigned as the result of a Notice of Hearing and Appointment of Hearing Officer dated February 11, 2011 and issued to the above-captioned taxpayers (“Taxpayers”)¹ by the Division of Taxation (“Division”) in response to a request for hearing filed with the Division. The parties agreed that this matter could be decided on an agreement statement of facts and written argument. The parties filed an agreement statement of facts on October 20, 2011 and briefs were timely filed by November 18, 2011.

II. JURISDICTION

The Division has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-1 et seq., R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-1-1 et seq., Division of Taxation Administrative Hearing Procedures Regulation AHP 97-0, and the Division of Legal Services Regulation 1 Rules of Procedure for Administrative Hearings.

III. ISSUE

Whether the Taxpayers' refund claim for the calendar year 2007 was timely filed pursuant to R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87.

IV. MATERIAL FACTS AND TESTIMONY

The parties stipulated to the following facts:

1. For the tax year 2007, the Taxpayers were residents of Rhode Island.
2. The Division is a state agency charged with the administration and enforcement of all State taxes including the Personal Income tax.
3. On October 15, 2008, the Taxpayers filed a joint Rhode Island resident individual income tax return for tax year 2007 (Form RI-1040, signed October 14, 2008). Said tax return reported Rhode Island income in the amount of _____ Rhode Island tax in the amount of _____, payments in the amount of _____ and claimed an overpayment in the amount of _____. The Taxpayers applied the overpayment to the 2008 tax year.
4. On July 18, 2010, the Taxpayers filed an amended 2007 Rhode Island individual income tax return (Form RI-1040X, signed July 6, 2010). Division's Exhibit Two (2). Said amended return reported changes to ordinary business income and claimed a research and development credit. Based on these changes the tax was reduced by _____ resulting in an additional overpayment that the Taxpayers claimed as a refund.
5. On October 19, 2010, the Division issued a letter informing the Taxpayers that their refund claimed on 2007 Rhode Island amended return was denied as filed out of time.

V. DISCUSSION

A. Legislative Intent

The Rhode Island Supreme Court has consistently held that it effectuates legislative intent by examining a statute in its entirety and giving words their plain and ordinary meaning. In re Falstaff Brewing Corp., 637 A.2d 1047 (R.I. 1994). See Parkway Towers Associates v. Godfrey, 688 A.2d 1289 (R.I. 1997). If a statute is clear and unambiguous, "the Court must interpret the statute literally and must give the words of the statute their plain and ordinary meanings.” Oliveira v. Lombardi, 794 A.2d 453 (R.I. 2002) (citation omitted). The Supreme Court has also established that it will not interpret legislative enactments in a manner that renders them nugatory or that would produce an unreasonable result. See Defenders of Animals v. Dept. of Environmental Management, 553 A.2d 541 (R.I. 1989) (citation omitted). In cases where a statute may contain ambiguous language, the Rhode Island Supreme Court has consistently held that the legislative intent must be considered. Providence Journal Co. v. Rodgers, 711 A.2d 1131 (R.I. 1998). The statutory provisions must be examined in their entirety and the meaning most consistent with the policies and purposes of the legislature must be effectuated. Id.

B. Relevant Statute

R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87(a) states as follows:

Limitations on credit or refund. – (a) General. Claim for credit or refund of an overpayment of tax shall be filed by the taxpayer within three (3) years from the time the return was filed or two (2) years from the time the tax was paid, whichever of these periods expires the later, or if no return was filed by the taxpayer, within two (2) years from the time the tax was paid. If the claim is filed within the three (3) year period, the amount of the credit or refund shall not exceed the portion of the tax paid within the three (3) year period. If the claim is not filed within the three (3) year period, but is filed within the two (2) year period, the amount of the credit or refund shall not exceed the portion of the tax paid during the two (2) years immediately preceding the filing of the claim. Except as otherwise provided in this section, if no claim is filed, the amount of a credit or refund shall not exceed the amount which would be allowable if a claim has been filed on the date the credit or refund is allowed.

C. Arguments

The Taxpayers argued that pursuant to R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-6,² Rhode Island should follow Federal definitions for income tax since R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87 is not

² R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-6 states as follows:

Meaning of terms. – Any term used in the Rhode Island personal income tax law shall have the same meaning as when used in a comparable context in the laws of the United explicit as to timing of refunds. The Taxpayers argue that the term whichever period expires later allows the refund.

The Division argues that the Taxpayers' taxes were deemed paid on April 15, 2008 and refunds are limited by R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87 and the Taxpayers do not fall under either the two (2) year provision or the three (3) year provision.

D. When Refunds are Allowed

R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87 provides different time periods within which a refund is allowed. A refund may be claimed within three (3) years of filing a return. If a claim is made within the three (3) year period, the amount of credit cannot exceed the amount of tax paid within that three (3) year period. A claim may be filed within two (2) years from the time the tax was paid. If a claim is made within the two (2) year period, the amount of refund may not exceed the portion of tax paid during the two (2) years preceding the filing of the claim.

Pursuant to R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87(i),³ the Taxpayers' tax was deemed paid on the date it was due: April 15, 2008. In addition, R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-51⁴ states that States relating to federal income taxes, unless a different meaning is clearly required. Any reference to the laws of the United States means the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, and amendments thereto thereto, and other provisions of the laws of the United States relating to federal income taxes for the same taxable year, except that if this reference should ever be declared unconstitutional then to the provisions that existed on January 1, 1972.

³ R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87(i) states as follows:

(i) Prepaid income tax. For purposes of this section, any income tax withheld from the taxpayer during any calendar year and any amount paid as estimated income tax for a taxable year is deemed to have been paid by the taxpayer on the fifteenth day of the fourth month following the close of his or her taxable year with respect to which the amount constitutes credit or payment.

⁴ R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-51 states in parts as follows:

Returns and liabilities. – (a) General. On or before the fifteenth day of the fourth month following the close of a taxable year, a Rhode Island personal income tax return shall be made and filed by or for:

Rhode Island personal income tax returns are to be filed by April 15 after the close of the taxable year. R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-52⁵ states that tax shall be paid on or before the date fixed for filing without regard to an extension. In addition, R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87(e)⁶ specifically precludes any other period of limitations specified in any other laws from being applied to recovery of personal income tax refunds.

R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-6 provides that the State income tax law shall have the same meaning as the Federal law when used in a “comparable context” unless a “different meaning is clearly required.” Federal law, 26 USC § 6511(a)⁷ refers to when

(1) Every resident individual required to file a federal income tax return for the taxable year, or having Rhode Island income for the taxable year, determined under § 44-30-12, in excess of the sum of his federal personal exemptions.

⁵ R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-52 states in part as follows:

Time and place for filing returns and paying tax. — A person required to make and file a Rhode Island personal income tax return shall, without assessment, notice, or demand, pay any tax due thereon to the tax administrator on or before the date fixed for filing the return, determined without regard to any extension of time for filing the return. The tax administrator shall prescribe the place for filing any return, declaration, statement, or other document and for payment of the tax.

⁶ R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87(e), states as follows:

(e) Failure to file claim within prescribed period. No credit or refund shall be allowed or made, except as provided in subsection (f) of this section, after the expiration of the applicable period of limitation unless a claim for credit or refund is filed by the taxpayer within that period or unless the tax administrator determines under subsection (f) of this section that the taxpayer has made an overpayment. Any later credit shall be void and any later refund erroneous. No period of limitations specified in any other law shall apply to the recovery by a taxpayer of moneys paid in respect of Rhode Island personal income tax.

⁷ 26 USC § 6511 states in part as follows:

(a) Period of limitation on filing claim.--Claim for credit or refund of an overpayment of any tax imposed by this title in respect of which tax the taxpayer is required to file a return shall be filed by the taxpayer within 3 years from the time the return was filed or 2 years from the time the tax was paid, whichever of such periods expires the later, or if no return was filed by the taxpayer, within 2 years from the time the tax was paid. Claim for credit or refund of an overpayment of any tax imposed by this title which is required to be paid by means of a stamp shall be filed by the taxpayer within 3 years from the time the tax was paid.

(b) Limitation on allowance of credits and refunds.--

(2) Limit on amount of credit or refund.--

(A) Limit where claim filed within 3-year period.--If the claim was filed by the taxpayer during the 3-year period prescribed in subsection (a), the amount of the credit or refund shall not exceed the portion of the tax paid within the period, immediately preceding the filing of the claim, equal to 3 years plus the period of any extension of time for filing the return. If the tax was required to be paid by means of a stamp, the amount of the credit or late claims may be made for Federal returns and provides for a two (2) and three (3) year time period for claims; two (2) years from the time tax was paid and three (3) years from when a return was filed. § 6511(b)(2)(A) and (B) addresses the issue of the amount that a taxpayer may receive when filing a late refund request. The Federal statute uses “immediately preceding” to explain how much money may be obtained through a refund for both the three (3) and two (2) year time period.

In contrast, Rhode Island chose to only apply the “immediately preceding” language to the two (2) year time period for a refund request. Unlike the Federal statute, the State statute has different amount limits. That is a clear difference.⁸ Thus, there is no reason to apply § 6511 to R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87. Accordingly, cases regarding 26 USC § 6511 are not relevant to the clear and unambiguous meaning of R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87. See Taxation Decision 2008-2 (2/11/08); Taxation Decision 2007-24 (10/25/07); Taxation Decision 2007-25 (10/25/07); and Taxation Decision 2007-14 (6/20/07); Taxation’s Decision 2007-10 (5/27/07).

refund shall not exceed the portion of the tax paid within the 3 years immediately preceding the filing of the claim.

(B) Limit where claim not filed within 3-year period.--If the claim was not filed within such 3-year period, the amount of the credit or refund shall not exceed the portion of the tax paid during the 2 years immediately preceding the filing of the claim.

(c) Special rules applicable in case of extension of time by agreement.--If an agreement under the provisions of section 6501(c)(4) extending the period for assessment of a tax imposed by this title is made within the period prescribed in subsection (a) for the filing of a claim for credit or refund--

(1) Time for filing claim.--The period for filing claim for credit or refund or for making credit or refund if no claim is filed, provided in subsections (a) and (b)(1), shall not expire prior to 6 months after the expiration of the period within which an assessment may be made pursuant to the agreement or any extension thereof under section 6501(c)(4).

⁸ Indeed, Rhode Island further differentiates its time limits by not including extensions in its time calculations which are included in the Federal statute. R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87(e) specifically precludes any other period of limitations specified in any other laws from being applied to recovery of personal income tax refunds. In contrast, § 6511 allows extensions of time for the payment of taxes to be included in calculating the time allowed for filing refund requests. Reading the two (2) statutes as a whole, they are clearly different.

Furthermore, “[w]hen interpreting a statute, our ultimate goal is to give effect to the General Assembly's intent . . . The best evidence of such intent can be found in the plain language used in the statute. Thus, a clear and unambiguous statute will be literally construed.” Martone v. Johnston School Committee, 824 A.2d 426, 431 (R.I. 2003). The Rhode Island statute clearly states that the time is “within” three (3) years so the clock begins from the date of filing and goes forward. Thus, the statute speaks for itself. The Taxpayers' arguments cannot override 1) the clear meaning of the statute; 2) the clear language of the statute regarding the term “within the three (3) year period”; and 3) the clear intent of the statute to limit the amount and time governing refunds.

Thus, the State and Federal statutes are different. The Federal statute provides that both the two (2) and three (3) year periods are “look back” periods as opposed to the State statute which differentiates the limits by a retroactive provision for the two (2) year period and a prospective provision for the three (3) year period. With those clear differences, there is no need to rely on the Federal statute's meaning as the Rhode Island statute has its own clear meaning. Thus, there is no statutory or regulatory requirement to apply Federal limits on refunds to Rhode Island.

Thus, applying the State statute results in the following timeline:

1. The Taxpayers' 2007 tax was deemed paid April 15, 2008. The Taxpayers were able to request a refund two (2) years from that date. Any claim for a refund filed in the two (2) year period would be limited to amounts paid in the preceding two (2) years.
2. The Taxpayers filed their 2007 Rhode Island return on October 15, 2008.
3. The Taxpayers filed an amended 2007 Rhode Island return on July 18, 2010 and claimed an overpayment as a refund.

3. July 18, 2010 is past the two (2) year period from the date the taxes were deemed paid that is allowed for requesting a refund.

4. The statute also allows a claim for a refund to be filed within three (3) years from the date of the return being filed.

5. Thus, the Taxpayers may file a request for a refund within three (3) years of filing of the return.

6. The Taxpayers are within the three (3) year period to claim a refund.

7. The statute specifically limits the amount of a refund for those filed in the three (3) year period to the portion of tax paid "within the three (3) year period" as opposed to those requests filed within the two (2) year period which are limited to tax paid "during the two (2) years immediately preceding the filing of the claim."

8. The Taxpayers have not paid any tax from July 18, 2010 to the present.

Pursuant to the tenets of statutory construction, a statute must be examined in its entirety and words be given their plain and ordinary meaning. Infra. The State statute states that the beginning of the three (3) year period is when the return was filed and that the time period is within three (3) years from when the return was filed. This unambiguous prospective application is further clarified by the fact that the statute clearly delineates that the two (2) year claim period refers to the period immediately preceding the filing date. Indeed, when reviewing the statute in its entirety and applying the plain meaning of the language, it is clear that the legislature intended to strictly limit the time to claim a refund and amounts of refunds. The legislature could have chosen to make the three (3) year period like the two (2) year period but chose not to. Indeed, it chose instead to strictly limit the time allowed and the amount of refunds claimed.

The Taxpayers argued that the term in the statute, "whichever of these periods expires the later" allows their late refund claim. However, the statute has time limitations for claiming refunds from the time of payment or time of filing. Either can apply to a taxpayer. The statute ensures that a taxpayer can obtain a refund under either time period if the taxpayer meets the statutory time limit and payment requirements.

The Taxpayers further argued that the statute as applied is absurd because a taxpayer who paid his or her taxes late could be allowed to obtain a refund. Such an argument is better suited for the legislature who enacted the law. In interpreting a statute, a statute will not be interpreted in such a way that would render it meaningless or that would obtain an absurd result. Infra. However, the Taxpayers' hypothetical is not an "absurd" result but rather a hypothetical that they believe is unfair. Under the statute, similarly situated taxpayers are all treated the same. To find that the three (3) year period is a "look back" period because it is hypothetically unfair would contravene the statute as written as well as the intent of the statute which strictly and clearly delineates the time and amounts by which refunds are governed.⁹

Finally, an agency's acquiescence to a continued practice is entitled to great weight in determining legislative intent. R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87 was enacted in 1971 and has not been amended. See Division's Final Decision (10/25/85) (denying refund request as untimely under R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87). While the three (3) year period clearly refers to the period from the date of filing, it is a well-recognized principle that a longstanding, practical and plausible interpretation given a statute of doubtful meaning by those responsible for its implementation without any interference by the Legislature should be accepted as evidence that such a construction conforms to the legislative intent. Thus, if it was found that the statute was unclear, Taxation's long standing interpretation is entitled to deference. Trice v. City of Cranston, 297 A.2d 649 (R.I. 1972).

However, the Taxpayers argue that there are Division cases that have found for taxpayers in the context of out-of-time refund requests so that the Division has not been consistent in its application of this law. The Taxpayers cited to five (5) administrative decisions as ruling in favor of taxpayers but all those decisions¹⁰ found that taxpayers had filed their requests for refunds too late. The decisions only addressed the three (3) year limit and did not fully analyze the applicability of the two (2) year limit provision. Nonetheless, in all these cited cases, the taxpayers were out of time.

Thus, not only is the Division's long standing interpretation entitled to deference as no changes have been made to the law by the legislature in 30 years, if a statute is considered ambiguous, deference is given to an administrative agency charged with the interpretation and enforcement of the statute. Auto Body Ass'n of Rhode Island v. Dept. of Bus. Regulation, 996 A.2d 91, 97 (R.I. 2010) (in administrative law "deference will be accorded to an administrative agency when it interprets a statute whose administration and enforcement have been entrusted to the agency * * * even when the agency's interpretation is not the only permissible interpretation that could be applied." (citations omitted)). While this statute is not ambiguous, the Division is afforded deference for its consistent and uniform interpretation of said statute.

Based on the forgoing, the Taxpayers do not qualify for their claimed refund pursuant to R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87. See Tax Decision, 2007-10 (May 10, 2007).

¹⁰ See Administrative Hearing 1996-20 (6/30/98); Administrative Hearing 1998-10 (11/14/96); Administrative Hearing 1996-10 (3/14/96); Administrative Hearing 1995-21 (9/25/95); Administrative Hearing 1988-27 (9/21/88).

VI. FINDINGS OF FACT

1. On or about February 11, 2011, the Division issued a Notice of Hearing and an Appointment of Hearing Officer to the Taxpayers.

2. The parties decided to have the matter decided on stipulated facts and briefs which were duly filed with the undersigned.

3. The Taxpayers' 2007 tax payment was due by April 15, 2008 and was deemed paid on that day.

4. The Taxpayers filed their 2007 Rhode Island resident return on October 15, 2008.

5. The Taxpayers filed an amended 2007 Rhode Island resident return on July 18, 2010 and claimed a refund for overpayment of tax.

6. There are no Rhode Island statutory or regulatory provisions that provide for applying Federal law to the Rhode Island statute regarding the claiming of late refunds to the filing of Rhode Island tax returns.

7. Pursuant to R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87(a), the Taxpayers are not entitled to the claimed refund.

VII. CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Based on the testimony and facts presented:

1. The Division has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-1 et seq. and R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-1-1 et seq.

2. Pursuant to R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87(a), the Taxpayers are not entitled to the refund claimed.

VIII. RECOMMENDATION

Pursuant to R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87(a), the Taxpayers are not entitled to the refund claimed and the Division properly denied the Taxpayers' claim for the refund.
